The Personal Benefits of Teen Volunteering:

Develops an increased sense of social responsibility—a global view of society and a heart for "giving back" and helping others. Also, exposes teens to diversity and multiculturalism as well as provides an opportunity to apply academic learning to real human needs. Builds relationships and "social connectedness" with peers, adults, and community. Improves communication and critical thinking skills.

The College Admissions Benefits of Teen Volunteering:

Helps students stand out among other applicants; admissions officers want well rounded co-eds who volunteer; service work is a leading decision-making factor after a student's GPA and SAT scores. Provides a topic of interest for college essays; emphasis on "why" and "how" a student has tackled an issue.

The Career Benefits of Teen Volunteering:

Helps students find their passions and interests that may lead to a career choice they may have not considered. Helps develop lifelong interpersonal and communication skills.
